

Introduction

This book is an inner look at what I believe my life was like / is like, that being said anything that has happened is only being told from my perspective and there is opportunity for misinformation, misinterpreting and that means that others who where there have the chance to deny any accounts of what actually happened. Anything I write in this book is open to a rewrite from anyone who wants to submit an entry and j will gladly release a 1.1 and so on as others choose to add to it, I'm sure my friends and family feel differently then I do about most things I've experienced thru my eyes and within my mind, my personal interpretation of reality is not like that of others , so I'm hopefully going to find a way to do a Q and A within the book itself that I have with my editors and proof readers to help understand the how and why things are happening, what I'm thinking and a better look at what's really going on within a story. The beginning of this book will be more or less a collection of story's and VHS tapes I can recall because who really remembers anything from there youngest years , but to understand a history of a person you have to start from the beginning. I'm sure this first few accounts of my childhood will spark a later version of added texts from family members if they choose to try and retell the story from a less grim perspective. But coming from my current mind set it's a dark and twisted spiraling world , I live in a controlled collapsing life that has a dim almost impossible future. But I have yet to give up on one day having a future and a life worth living .

I have dramatic character arcs and transformations within my life, making each part of my life unique and your not going to guess anything your going to read. But I'll share my madness with you because part of my new Loren life is the Philippines and if I sell 40 copy's in a month I'll make minimum wage after child support.
